APPAREL

This section includes apparel designed to be worn both on and off the river. Insulative layers provide thermal protection to keep paddlers warm on the water and come in a variety of styles and fabrics. Neoprene, polypropylene, and wool have different advantages for diverse situations, but all share the ability to insulate against the cold even when wet. Paddling jackets and pants help guard against the elements, while dry tops, dry pants and dry suits offer the highest level of protection, keeping paddlers dry in even the harshest of conditions. Casual apparel keeps paddlers feeling comfortable and looking good at the take-out or at the bar after a sweet day on the water.

DRY WEAR WHITEWATER JACKETS

Keeping you dry on the water and allowing for maximum comfort in colder water and weather.

NEW FOR 2012

DUEM - S/S FREESTYLE JACKET

The Comp 220 X* short sleeve jacket features very similar characteristics as the Aquamax jacket, but is made from a lighter version of fabric. 220 X Cordura nylon is the latest development in the high-tech/performance fabric industry from Japan. The jacket is designed with care for warmth and comfort, but is still a top freestyle performer. Great freestyler's piece of equipment, as well as an all-rounder in warmer conditions.

LEVEL SIX - MACK 2.0

Completely stripped down and re-built, the infamous Mack once again turns the tables on standard dry top design. Constructed from a combination of eXhaust 2.5 and 3-ply waterproof breathable nylons, the "eXhaust Hybrid" Mack 2.0 is built for both durability and comfort. Rugged 3-ply in high wear areas like the shoulders, forearms and sides, and lightweight 2.5 ply in the body, this unique dry top gives the user the best of both worlds.

DRY PANTS

Water resistant pants to help keep warm in cold water or weather.

NEW FOR 2012

NOOKIE - HYPR DRY PANTS

The Hypr Dry Pants take over from popular Xtreme Pants - but by frequent demand Nookie changed to the superior bamboo herringbone 4-ply fabric and added the fashionable socks as an option. Huge amounts of Enduro mesh reinforcement complete a hard to beat trouser package. They're comfortable but very tough on all high wear areas. You can kneel down on rock or concrete, or slither down a steep granite boulder on your backside. The Hypr breathable 4-ply fabric will allow moisture out whilst the choice of latex ankles or socks complete the dry barrier.
